FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

LONDON – October 29, 2011 – Fancygames today announced major release for iOS version of their game Yumm. Yumm is a unique time killing game in which players can compare their reacting skills with these charming creatures. New version also includes a Halloween character and Yumm's cute girlfriend called Yummi.

After releasing the first version of Yumm, it has had over one million downloads with people leaving many positive comments. According to the feedback, people perceive Yumm as a real creature living in their phone. Furthermore, one person wrote left feedback saying that after winning Yumm she always tickled him so he wouldn't get disappointed. Encouraged by this, Fancygames decided to make additional characters from the Yumm's family - Halloween and Yummi. All new characters can be downloaded from the in-app shop and more characters are expected to come soon.

With new multiplayer mode you can compete with your friends and see who has got better reflexes, which is one of the features that has been asked for by players. Here two different creatures can be sited on both sides of the screen. The players should place fingers in their characters' mouths and play as usual. However, the main challenge is to not be scared by the opponent's creature, as they will shut their mouths at different time.

Yumm 2.0 is now available world-wide for free of charge from the Apple's App Store for iPhone and iPod Touch, or by visiting: www.fancygames.net/yumm.
